VIP Visit: U.S. Senator Brown

A clean room tour and a Roundtable with leadership of our Aerospace Center customers brought U.S. Senator Sherrod Brown back to Heath for his second visit in 18 months. Brown stopped March 28 and donned a clean room garment to tour the new, ISO Class 7 clean room. He also took in timely updates on the status of the Port Authority's defense-related customers.

D.C. Day Reverberations Continue

Armed with a message designed to remind the Air Force about the unique capability of the Aerospace Center, share the development impact story with the Ohio Delegation to Congress, and recognize the success of this work for the community, Boeing, and the national defense, 40 community leaders trekked to Capitol Hill. The DC Day's impact is still being felt three weeks later as the next steps in the advocacy strategy continue.

Spotlight on Horton Building

It was three years ago this month that the Port Authority was out to bids for construction of a speculative office and clean room building to help with the economic recovery in the region. A lease would get signed before the first spade of dirt was turned, but space remains available in the 45,000 sq. ft. Horton Building which opened in July 2011.
